

Managing internal problems or disputes

A trust may experience internal problems or disputes about how it is being run or the way in which its rules or the trust deed are being interpreted and applied. These problems need to be dealt with by the trust itself.

Read about the role of the Registrar of Incorporated Societies.